AT THE THEATRES

At the Theatrorium.

For the first time in his film career Herbert Rawlinson, leading man of the Worthington company, is playing an altogether different role—a crook. The part is that of "Slim Donegan" in "The Scales of Justice," an underworld story in three reels by James Dayton.

Rawlinson, it will be remembered, was featured in the serial, "The Black Box," in which he played the role of Sanford Quest, the criminologist. "Now it is a case of turn-about," said Rawlinson, "instead of hunting the criminals, I have a role in which, as a crook, I am hunted. I rather like playing this part for a change. I am having no difficulty with it as, during the long siege with the Sanford Quest role, I gave considerable study to the characters of the underworld and the knowledge that I gained at that time is helping me considerably with the role of Slim Donegan."

At the Majestic Today.

"Should a Mother Tell?" is the attraction at the Majestic theatre today.

Perhaps never before had a woman been called upon to face a problem of such vital importance to herself and her dear ones as presented itself to Marie Baudin.

Faced with the tragic responsibility of choosing between her daughter's happiness and the life of an innocent man, there comes into the play the world old, primitive instinct of the mother to protect her child. Her first wild impulse is to sacrifice all for her own. Later comes a reaction. Can she stand by and permit the blood of an innocent man to be shed?

So the cruel struggle rages within the mother's breast. Now her instinctive mother-passion is uppermost. Now her sense of right and justice. It is a big question. Miss Nansen, in "Should a Mother Tell?" has one solution for it. You may or may not agree with it, but you certainly want to see it. It is shown at the Majestic theatre today.

Mary Pickford at the Palace

A new and hitherto unsuspected Mary Pickford is revealed in the Cho-Cho-San which she so admirably plays in the magnificent photoplay version of John Luther Long's classic "Madame Butterfly," which is shown at the Palace tomorrow (Tuesday).

The great mass of admirers of Mary Pickford who have followed her throughout her motion picture career have been accustomed to see their favorite as a little blonde curly-haired
